Rules for the Holy Cross Confirmation Retreat

In order for the purpose of our retreat to be realized, we need full cooperation of these rules:

No drugs or alcohol; no fire arms, and no entering the cabins of the opposite sex. No leaving the camp area; no electronic equipment allowed, this includes and is not limited to cell phones, IPOD's, CD players, game boys, lap tops, etc. This will enable us to communicate with each other and not shut others out. The chaperons have been instructed to collect any electronic items brought to the retreat. They in turn will be given to Theresa who will then turn them over to the parents upon pick up at Holy Cross.

Please be prompt when called for meals, talks, or other planned activities; (a bell will ring to signal gathering time), sit next to someone different at each meal time so we can get to know each other better; show courtesy in cabins so those who wish to sleep are not disturbed.

During talks and faith sharing, it is essential that we respect and not criticize what is shared. Read over and follow the directions for small group faith sharing. Some of the things mentioned may be deeply felt and personal to the speaker. We must trust and appreciate one another by honestly speaking from the heart.

Everyone is expected to participate: One's sharing can help others clarify their own thoughts and may be the way God speaks to someone in the group.

Things that are shared this weekend are not discussed after we leave. This is essential to ensure we will feel free to share fully from our hearts. What happened at camp stays at camp.

Thoughts, feelings, attitudes are to be shared, but try to stick to the subject. We have many topics to discuss and want to allow time for all to share.

We are not here to judge each other, and we are not expected to solve other people's problems in the discussion group. In simple terms: no put downs, by word, expression or actions. None of us are perfect, but this weekend we can all try harder to reflect a more Christ-like attitude toward one another.

When someone is speaking, our role is to listen and try to understand more about the person through their sharing. It is alright to question, clarify or disagree, but never to criticize or ridicule!

If we separate into discussion groups, spend the full time in discussion. There is always more to learn about those who are making this retreat with us. Above all, be open to what God has in store for you this weekend. To close with a passage from scripture "If today you hear His voice, harden not your hearts."
God Bless You!
