Randy Oliver is a world renowned speaker, educator, bee biologist, leading researcher, commercial beekeeper, and regular contributor to the American Beekeeping Journal. He is one of the premier beekeeping speakers in the U.S. and the owner/author of <http://scientificbeekeeping.com>.

Randy will be sharing his experience and provide evidence based and scientifically-verified explanations of the biological processes occurring in the hive, as well as the effects of various management options. After attending his workshop, beekeepers will be better informed when making practical management decisions about their hives. This is a rare chance to learn from one of the most respected researchers in beekeeping, and ask questions.

MAKE SURE you bring your protective clothing (BEE SUIT), basic beekeeping tools, a notebook and pen. It may be HOT so BRING WATER to stay hydrated.

The workshop is: FREE to all current LACBA members. You can renew your membership ($20/yearly) at check in.

Again, this is by EVITE only and YOU MUST RSVP to the EVITE by Monday, August 20th.

If you did not receive your EVITE, check your spam box. If it's not there, contact lacba.membership@gmail.com

Thank you to The Valley Hive and Cal Poly Pomona for providing the venues. Also, to all LACBA members for your countless volunteer hours throughout the year that provide the funding to make our events possible – Thank You!
