About Madera Vox

Oboe, bassoon, piano, percussion and voice, an unusual configuration, is what makes Madera Vox unique, versatile and engaging. Venturing off into uncharted territory, the quintet has a distinctive sound, one which comes from unexpected and often playful combinations of instruments and voice, coupled with an intelligent and highly entertaining mix of superb original compositions and arrangements. Based in the Hudson Valley of New York, the indie-classical ensemble has performed extensively in the Northeast region, including Chamber Music America's annual conference in Manhattan, and was invited to perform at the 2011 International Double Reed Society conference in Tempe, AZ. Madera Vox released their debut self-titled album in September 2009 and the group's second recording, Insomniac Moonlight, is to be released in September 2013. Featuring compositions by Libby Larsen, Chick Corea, and Kurt Weill-a major influence for the group-Madera Vox succeeds in performing music that spans generations as well as genres.

Individually, members of the group have achieved critical success performing everywhere from Broadway to Carnegie Hall, overseas and on numerous recordings. Oboist Keve Wilson, bassoonist Cornelia McGiver and pianist Sylvia Buccelli have played the Concertgebouw, Carnegie, Weill, and Merkin Halls, among others and can be heard on recordings from Albany, Parnassus, Narada and PBR Records, as well as on film soundtracks. Soprano Kelly Ellenwood has distinguished Broadway credentials (La Carlotta - Phantom of the Opera), and percussionist David Gluck has toured internationally as a founding member of Rhythm and Brass, with whom he has multiple recordings.

Believing that music education is paramount in their quest for musical excellence, Madera Vox frequently performs a musical storytelling concert for kids, Black Bear's Hudson Valley Tale, with story and illustrations by Iza Trapani and original music by MadVox percussionist/arranger/composer David Gluck.

Artist Biographies

Hailed by the New York Times for her “magnificently sweet tone,” oboist Keve Wilson is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and winner of the Concert Artists Guild competition in New York with her quintet, Meliora Winds. Following their Carnegie Hall debut, the group went on to teach for ten summers in Houston and Argentina at the American Festival for the Arts. Keve has played in the pits of six Broadway shows, and toured the country with Disney’s Beauty and the Beast. As solo oboist with the Absolute Ensemble, Keve has recorded on many recordings, including the 2002 Grammy Nominated Absolute Mix, and has performed in Greece, Germany, Vienna, New Zealand, Estonia, Finland, London, Amsterdam, Dubai and Paris. Keve can also be heard on the 2012 Grammy Nominated CD Alma Adentro by Miguel Zenon, where she is featured on english horn. With Mr. Zenon, she also played at the Newport Jazz Festival and on NPR radio. For six years, Keve lived in Los Angeles, where she played on film and television soundtracks, including Spiderman 3. Keve has attended numerous festivals such as Tanglewood, Chamber Music Northwest and the Bermuda Festival, and is currently on the faculty at the 92 Y and Diller-Quaile schools of music. Her first solo CD, Pure Imagination, was released in 2011 on NAXOS to critical acclaim. Originally from Hyde Park, NY, Keve lives in her favorite city of New York with her husband and two Portuguese water dogs. She is represented by Baird Artists Management.

Bassoonist Cornelia McGiver works regularly as a musician in the New York and New Haven areas. Most recently she has performed with the New Haven Symphony Orchestra, Orchestra New England, Live Music Project, Canterbury Choral Society, Trinity Chorale, Cappella Cantorum and numerous others. Woodwind coaching positions include working with Joan Tower at Bard College; and she also teaches privately. Cornelia holds a BA from Bard College, an MS Ed, and is a licensed and certified Speech-Language Pathologist. Her training as a bassoonist includes eight years of study with Kim Laskowski of the New York Philharmonic. Her latest obsession is learning folk tunes on the accordion.

Sylvia Buccelli is a founding member of several chamber music ensembles in the Northeast as well as a frequent recital partner of instrumentalists and vocalists. Sylvia is on the faculty of the State University of New York at New Paltz and holds an MM from Manhattan School of Music as a student of Artur Balsam. Her work can be heard on the Albany and Parnassus record labels. In the summer, Sylvia participates in Music on Monhegan, a chamber music series she originated with colleagues off the coast of Maine. To decompress from the note-wrangling aspects of pianism, she pursues a wide variety of athletic outdoor activities from running and hiking to kayaking and mountain biking.

Originally from Utica, New York, Dave Gluck is Professor of Studio Composition at Purchase College, State University of New York. As a founding member of Rhythm & Brass, he has toured the globe as a percussionist, appearing with the Detroit Symphony, Boston Pops, Youngstown Symphony and at festivals such as Interlochen and Bands of America, while also serving as a visiting artist and clinician at hundreds of schools and universities. An acclaimed composer and arranger, his works have been recorded on Koch, d’Note and Skinny Tie Records and featured in Jazz Player magazine, BET Network and NPR’s Fresh Air, among others. A former member of the Dallas Brass and a founder of the chamber ensemble Madera Vox, David is a Yamaha, Zildjian, and Innovative Percussion performing artist. Most recently, as a featured percussionist, David recorded with Bernie Williams on the CD, Moving Forward for which the live performance was broadcast on ESPN and the YES network. He received his Bachelor’s degree in music from Ithaca College, was a teaching assistant at the University of North Texas and earned his MFA in Studio Composition from Purchase College. Rhythms of the Game: The Link Between Musical and Athletic Performance, a new book co-authored by Gluck with Grammy Award-nominated producer and musician Bob Thompson and former New York Yankee and fellow musician Bernie Williams, was released in July 2011.

Soprano and award-winning actor Kelly Ellenwood has performed principal roles on and off Broadway, on stages in every state across the US, and on film & television. Awards include the Gold Medal and First Prize at the Savannah (GA) Music Festival's "American Traditions Competition" singing America's music - Gospel, Blues, Jazz and the American Musical Theatre. She received her BM from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and earned an MM from the University of Illinois Champaign-Urbana where she coached with legend John Wustman. Kelly is particularly proud to call herself a "Community Organizer" and between her music, raising a family and volunteer work is happily and perpetually overextended.
