

Denver Law Review
Vol. 96 Recent Developments in the Tenth Circuit Issue
Soliciting Articles Now!

Every year, the Denver Law Review devotes its second issue to legal issues of special interest to the Tenth Circuit. The purpose of the Tenth Circuit issue is to provide a forum for scholarship by professors, practitioners, judges, and law clerks on topics that have particular importance to the Tenth Circuit and its constituent states—Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah, and Wyoming.

Past contributors to this issue have written on a variety of profound topics including: the trial of Aurora, Colorado theater shooter James Holmes; how net neutrality policies can hamper broadband innovation; public access to oral argument recordings within the Tenth Circuit; and the substantive rights of federal prisoners.

The Denver Law Review is currently soliciting articles for its Recent Developments in the Tenth Circuit edition, to be published in Issue 2 of Volume 96, scheduled for late 2018.

Interested authors should email Natalie Spiess (nspiess19@law.du.edu) and Chelsea Marx (cmarx19@law.du.edu), Case Note and Comment Editors, by Friday, April 30th for more information or to submit an article.

We are excited to continue the Denver Law Review's tradition of focusing on critical legal issues that hit close to home and hope to work with you on an article.
