FOOT PAIN PLANTAR FASCIITIS

Foot pain caused by tightening of the connective tissue or plantar fascia can cause significant dysfunction. Tightness of the fascia can place a lot of pressure on sensitive nerves and stimulate bone spur formation. People with this condition often have difficulty walking, finding comfortable shoes, and may develop chronic problems

Clemens Physical Therapy can help people with symptoms of long-term, chronic foot pain from tightness in the plantar fascia. We use a lot of gentle “hands on” manual therapy and specific exercises designed to improve pain and restore your ability to return to the activities you want to do. Treatment works well along with medication or other treatments provided by your physician or podiatrist.

TREATMENTS AT CLEMENS PHYSICAL THERAPY

Manual “hands-on” therapy:

Very gentle treatment designed with people with chronic foot pain and tightness in mind. The goal is to stretch tight muscles and connective tissue and mobilize joints without aggravating symptoms.

Modalities: Moist heat, ice, ultrasound, or electrical stimulation to decrease pain and inflammation and loosen tight muscles.

Exercise: Very gentle strengthening and stretching programs designed with people with chronic foot pain in mind. The goal is to restore function and prevent future problems.

Education: Addresses work/activity modification, posture awareness, shoe considerations, and prevention measures. Self-help techniques to help you maintain your progress on your own.
