Liturgical Reflection

3rd Sunday of Easter

FIRST READING: Acts 5:27-31, 40-41

The Acts of the Apostles continues to tell the story of the spread of the Gospel in the days following the Resurrection and the Ascension of Jesus. This Sunday we again hear of the Apostles and the ongoing conflict with the Sanhedrin. To keep them from preaching about Jesus, the authorities had the Apostles jailed. But an angel of God secretly released them during the night and ordered them to resume their preaching in the Temple area. The authorities puzzle over how these men escaped locked cells, but the Apostles are convinced God is directing their fate. That is why, after this second arrest, they dare to defy the Sanhedrin and insist they must obey God, rather than men. Beaten and warned to keep silent about Jesus, the Apostles go forth rejoicing, not because they are free, nor because they narrowly escaped death, but because they were found worthy to suffer for the sake of Christ.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM: Psalm 118

The Responsorial Psalm continues the theme found in the First Reading: God can transform events that might be considered to be curses and make them into blessings. It does not say that God will do away with all our difficulties. It is assumed that there will be moments of mourning and discouragement and that there will be moments when we suffer the consequences of our sins. Our hope lies in the fact that God will soon deliver us from our grief, and will and will always be willing to forgive us our faults.

SECOND READING: Revelation 5:11-14

The Book of Revelation shifts from extolling the creator to unfolding the story of the plan of salvation. The vivid depiction of the heavenly liturgy finds all in the universe raising its voice to the glory of God. John's message is clear: Christ is not a victim; he is a victor reigning at the right hand of God. He is the source of life and those who give themselves to him, no matter what trials they must endure, will conquer death with him and find eternal reward in his Kingdom.

GOSPEL: John 21:1-19

The third appearance of the Risen Christ happens at the seashore. Again, the Lord is encountered in meal fellowship. Notice how the three affirmations demanded of Peter are parallel to his three denials before the Crucifixion. Peter and the others will be called to powerfully shepherd the flock, even though it will be to the death. Peter's death is referenced in the stretching out of hands. Not only will Peter follow Jesus as shepherd of the flock, he will also follow him to the glory of martyrdom for the sake of his sheep.

Priests for Life

Reflection on Today's Readings- Today's readings make it clear that Jesus' resurrection does not only bring life to him. Rather, it begins a process whereby, through our obedience, life comes to us and extends through us to all the world. The theme of obedience to the Risen Christ comes through in the Gospel passage where the fruitless, all-night efforts of the fishermen-apostles are contrasted to a simple act of obedience to one command of the Risen Lord. The 153 fish represents the number of known kinds of fish in that day, and therefore symbolizes that people of every race, nation, and language are called to acknowledge the Lord and will be brought into the Kingdom by the preaching of the Church. As the second reading mentions, "every creature" will worship before the throne. Obedience to God and to the Lamb is the call of everyone.

In the first reading, the apostles obey the Risen Lord rather than the misguided commands of human authority. More fundamentally, they point out that obedience to the Lord yields the fruit of the Holy Spirit, who gives life to all through repentance and faith. This overarching theme of obedience that leads to life contrasts powerfully with the attitude of the culture of death that real freedom consists in forging our own way through life, insisting on our own choices, and arranging both our private lives and public policies in such a way that protects absolute, or nearly-absolute, personal autonomy. That is simply not the way of salvation or even of earthly happiness. Instead, the only way to both is a resounding "Yes" to life, in obedience to the one who conquers death and gives life abundantly.

Pro-Peace and Pro-Life - "On receiving the Nobel Prize for Peace, Blessed Mother Teresa of Calcutta had the courage to say to the leaders of political communities: 'If we let a mother kill the fruit of her womb, what is left to us? It is the principle of abortion that endangers peace in the world'. It is true! There can be no true peace without respect for life, especially if it is innocent and defenseless as is that of the unborn child. Elementary coherence requires those who seek peace to safeguard life. No pro-peace activity can be effective unless attacks on life at all its stages, from conception until natural death, are as energetically opposed." (St. John Paul II To The Members Of The Italian Pro-Life Movement, 22 May 2003)

News from the Vatican

CHRISTIANS MUST NOT GIVE IN TO FAILURE

Reflecting on the First Reading of the day, taken from the Book of Numbers, Pope Francis said that at times Christians "prefer failure," leaving room for complaint and dissatisfaction, a perfect terrain, he said, for the devil in which to sow his seeds.

According to the Reading, the people of God, he explained, could not bear the journey: their enthusiasm and hope as they escaped slavery in Egypt gradually faded, their patience wore out, and they began muttering and complaining to God: "Why have you brought us from Egypt to die in this desert?"

"The spirit of tiredness takes away our hope," the Pope remarked, adding that "tiredness is selective: it always causes us to see the negative in the moment we are living, and forget the good things we have received. When we feel desolated and cannot bear the journey, we seek refuge either in idols or in complaint. This spirit of fatigue leads us Christians to be dissatisfied and everything goes wrong. Jesus himself taught us this when he said we are like children playing games when we are overcome by this spirit of dissatisfaction."

The Pope said some Christians give in to "failure" without realizing that this creates the "perfect terrain for the devil." They are "afraid of consolation, afraid of hope, afraid of the Lord's caress," he said. Pope Francis lamented the fact that this is the life of many Christians: "They live complaining, they live criticizing, they mutter and are unsatisfied."

"The people of God could not bear the journey. We Christians often can't bear the journey. We prefer failure, that is to say desolation." He said it is the desolation of the serpent: the ancient serpent, that of the Garden of Eden. Here it is a symbol, he explained, of that same serpent that seduced Eve. It is a way, he continued, of showing the serpent inside that always bites in times of desolation.

Those who spend their lives complaining, the Pope said, are those who "prefer failure, who bear to hope, of those who could not bear the resurrection of Jesus."

Pope Francis concluded inviting Christians to ask the Lord to free us from this disease. "May the Lord, he said, "always give us hope for the future and the strength to keep going."

"God searches for you, even if you don't search for Him. God loves you, even if you have forgotten Him. God looks for beauty in you, even if you think you have uselessly squandered all your talents."

Pope Francis
