Nuclear Power
What You Need to Know About Price, Pollution and Proliferation

ALFRED MEYER is a social activist who serves on the board of directors of Physicians for Social Responsibility (PSR) and co-chairs the Radiation and Health Committee. Based in Washington DC, PSR is a U.S. non-profit organization which advocates for public health by addressing policies regarding nuclear weapons, nuclear power, nuclear waste, climate change and toxic chemicals.

Meyer is active in New York City, networking PSR with other groups and efforts regarding the ongoing nuclear disaster at Fukushima Dai-ichi in Japan, the United Nations’ response to Fukushima, and efforts to close the nearby reactors at Indian Point. Additionally, Meyer is past president and secretary of the board of Friends of Chernobyl Centers U.S., which works with Chernobyl Centers for psychosocial rehabilitation in five Ukrainian communities greatly affected by the Chernobyl nuclear catastrophe in 1986, and has visited the community centers and the reactor site in Ukraine.

He has served as the program director for the Alliance for Nuclear Accountability in Washington DC, the executive director of PSR Wisconsin, and the chair of the Wisconsin Network for Peace and Justice.
