Committed to a nuclear-free Great Lakes

Nuclear Power is dangerous at any speed!

Don't Waste Michigan (DWM) was formed when the Federal Government & nuclear industry targeted Michigan for nuclear waste dumps. Led by Dr. Mary Sinclair, DWM helped organize town meetings & rallies at the state Capitol and convinced the legislators that a nuclear dump in Michigan was not acceptable. The campaign was a great success, not only in stopping Michigan from becoming a nuclear waste dump, but also in educating the public about nuclear issues in the Great Lakes region. DWM now functions on a global scale, in coalition with other groups to host educational seminars, conferences, rallies, and events. DWM actively opposes the relicensing of dangerous, aging nuclear power plants, the unsafe storage of nuclear waste, and the waste of taxpayer money to fund nuclear.

DWM has joined a coalition to stop the transport of high level nuclear waste in the waters of the Great Lakes.

Don't Waste Michigan, the Sierra Club & other groups have joined to try to stop the building of a new nuclear reactor, FERMI 3, near Monroe, Michigan. Mike Keegan, of DWM, T.J. Lodge, an environmental attorney, Kevin Kamps of Beyond Nuclear & others, have formed contentions to stop another nuclear waste-producing, expensive, and dangerous nuclear reactor on the Great Lakes.
