AROUND TOWN Video: An Immigrant Mother Faces Deportation

POSTED BY STEVE HARUCH ON WED, APR 24, 2013 AT 11:54 AM

In this installment of the fantastic Nashville Docujournal series, a look at an immigrant mother facing possible deportation and separation from her daughters. From the filmmakers:

Fani Gonzalez prepares for a follow-up appointment with the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) wing of the Department of Homeland Security in regards to a previous detainment during a stop caused by a traffic violation. During the previous detainment, Gonzalez signed a voluntary departure agreement — the terms of which, she says, she did not understand at the time of signing — requiring proof of transportation to exit the United States.

It's wrenching.

I was going to say that posting this was gonna be a beacon to every morally crippled troll who frequents PITW, but the vultures have already landed.

Is it a crime for a baby to be born in Mexico? You're all demeaning Mexico and its rich cultural heritage. On the other hand, we've already got 11 million Mexicans up here eligible for government kickbacks so what does another one matter? The baby will only add a little bit to the tab. Here is an example of the costs of the little tykes in a favored liberal city in a favored liberal state:

@Mardukpantslessdiversion: Since you're too lazy to look, the link was reporting a Los Angeles County supervisor's statement that illegal immigrants cost Los Angeles County $1,600,000,000 in 2010. But you're not paying income taxes - in fact you probably receive a tax rebate on taxes you didn't pay, plus your food stamps, and you don't live in California, so it's of no concern to you

For all the bleeding hearts out there, I dare you to attempt to live in Mexico w/o proper papers & see what happens. You'll find your ass in jail & they'll throw away the key.

xray/ray/gast/zoombah/vladthepredictableredundant: Damnd whitebread, you got more fake ID's than a fraternity house!

"Is it a crime for a baby to be born in Mexico"

No, but it is advantageous for the baby to be born here and achieve immediate American Citizenship, don't you agree. Now I would hesitate to speculate on how your parents treated you (really Jim?), but because many of these economic refugees (have fun with that) parents actually LOVE their babies and wish for them a better life then is widely available south of the border. Yes, I know that is costing YOU money, and I realize your morality is predicated upon the Almighty Dollar, but in the greater consideration and in the spirit expressed by MY forefathers when they swam here from Ireland, France, Holland and such, and even those who stood on the shore and said "Oh Shit, Fking White People", I CAN RELATE to their dream!

Sorry you have lost your soul in your wallet and your Klan hood and skirt (bet you are fabulous!!!), but this country SHOULD not share your isolationism and heartless elitism!

As for you bobsweiner, I would love to see you in Mexico! You wouldn't last a day!

Brother Bob, you are so right about living in Mexico without papers! You know what the Mexican's do to people living there illegally?!? They strip them naked, dip them in a big vat of glue, cover them in feathers, and then hang them out to dry in the town square for three hours while everyone goes out and laughs at them while they are taking their "siesta"! Then they throw you in jail and feed you beans that are a week old! The only Americans who would even try to live in that hellhole are criminals and hipster doofuses who don't know any better!
