

Tasting Visually, the natural hues come together to present an intense, bright cherry colour on a dark background, while also revealing a certain vermilion sparkle in its fine robe.

The nose arouses an abundance of sensations given the complexity of the wine. Balsamic aromas can be sharply and clearly perceived, blending in with hints of juniper resin along with medicinal suggestions, such as that of candied ginger root peel. Nonetheless, the most surprising feature is the still lively presence of a grape that is closely linked to the tertiary series, providing hints of blackberry and black plums.

The nose is complemented by a full-bodied taste, where we find a blend of the grape tannins and hints of wood, thus giving rise to a leisurely and tasty passage.

A good wine needs to be properly matched. We recommend that this wine accompany cranberry preserve, roasts and red meat dishes.
