BWF ADOPTION INFORMATION

The following information is requested so that we can assist you in the selection of a house rabbit companion. This application and consultation with a BWF adoption counselor is designed to help us determine if the adoption is in the rabbit's best interest and to assist you in finding the rabbit/s most compatible with your lifestyle. Rabbits are highly social—they are happiest and thrive when living with other rabbits as an integrated part of their families' lives and surroundings. Therefore, rabbits are housed inside only and require 5 to 8 hours of playtime daily. To be considered as an adopter you must:

- Be able and willing to provide an indoor, loving, safe and peaceful environment for your rabbits.
- Be financially stable and willing to provide all necessary medical care.
- Be committed to the health and welfare of the rabbit for his/her lifetime (an average of 8-10 years) regardless of lifestyle changes such as divorce, moving, etc.
- Be aware that we DO NOT adopt rabbits to children—all members of the household should visit the prospective rabbit and apply for adoption.
- Be aware that we DO NOT place rabbits in a home with an un-neutered or un-spayed rabbit.
- Be willing to agree to a home visit and consultation by one of our adoption counselors prior to the adoption.
- Agree to an adoption fee which is used to pay for our rabbits spay/neuter/microchipping and medical care.
- Be willing to agree to a follow-up home visit within 1-2 months of the adoption date.
- Agree to our Adoption Policies.

Thank you for wanting to give a rabbit a safe and loving home. Our primary goal at BWF is education—the purpose of the initial visit is to help facilitate a good match between a bunny and your family's needs and comfort levels. Please complete the application and send via email to: info@bunnyworldfoundation.org

Attention: Adoptions.

ADOPTION POLICIES

- 1) Primary Caregiver. When a rabbit is adopted from BWF, the primary caregiver must be a responsible adult. The rabbit should be treated as an integral part of the family, i.e., no group ownership (such as a classroom pet). WE DO NOT adopt rabbits as pets for children. The rabbit must be wanted by the entire family.
- 2) Indoor Housing. Adopters must understand that our rabbits are to live as household companions. This means that they must have their primary living space indoors and must spend every night indoors. During the daytime, adopters can allow their rabbits outdoor daytime exercise. If this is the case, the rabbit must be provided with an area with secure fencing, and adequate supervision. Fosterers may require additional safety precautions appropriate to their locale.

- 3) Social Requirements. If the rabbit is going to be alone (i.e. without the company of people, a cat or other household pets) for most of the time, then we recommend that the adopter adopt a second rabbit as a companion to the first.
- 4) Returns: If there are such problems with the adopted rabbit that the adopter needs to return the rabbit, we ask that you refer to your Adoption Agreement. Once an animal is adopted from Bunny World Foundation, the space vacated is usually filled within a day. A return requires two preparations: a space must be opened by a new adoption, and another rabbit must be “bumped” from the rescue list at the animal shelter. Nevertheless, all rabbits adopted from BWF must be returned to BWF in case of insurmountable problems in accordance to the Adoption Agreement signed by both parties. Some common sense and courtesy is expected.
- 5) Exchange: Bunny World Foundation does not exchange animals. Exceptions may be made when BWF and adopter are working together on making a match between an adoptee and a pre-residing rabbit and when in BWF’s judgment, a different match would be less stressful to the animals.

ADOPTING A SECOND RABBIT FROM BWF

The biggest advantage to getting a second rabbit is emotional support for your first rabbit when you’re not around. Once you have seen multiple rabbits snuggling and kissing, you will never want to have only one rabbit again. Rabbits that travel, board, or visit the vet together are less stressed than single rabbits that experience these events.

Because we can’t assume any two rabbits will get along with each other, strategy is used for second rabbit adoptions. This strategy assumes that YES, there is a rabbit your rabbit will like, but we can’t always predict with certainty which rabbit it will be. Because it is the nature of rabbits to like or dislike passionately, rabbit matchmaking is something of an art. At BWF, match-making is our specialty. Below is a description of the process we use.

Tell us about your rabbit’s personality, history, and habits, and communicate details about your home. If your rabbit is not yet spayed or neutered, this must happen next. Tell us what kind of rabbit you were hoping to adopt, keeping in mind that your rabbit will have a final say. We know our rescued buns very well, which helps to ensure a good match for all.

We will set up a time for you to bring your rabbit to meet two or more rabbits who have been selected by us in consultation with you. At least two candidates are considered, because despite our best intentions, one rabbit may reject the other. Body language of the rabbits will be interpreted by the staff facilitating the match and can vary from indifference to excitement. Based on the rabbit’s reactions, the adopter’s preference, and the matchmaker’s assessment of the match, the date can move on to bonding. Bonding is usually a period of one week with the rabbits together under supervision in neutral territory. Reports are made to the caretaker on the rabbit’s progress. If negative behavior occurs, a different match is considered. We don’t want either rabbit hurt or stressed. We will try different combinations of rabbits until the chemistry is perfect.

The Bunnymoon begins when positive, trusting behavior is seen. The two bunnies can now go home. The adopter is instructed to keep the rabbits in a small, neutral, confined area, such as a spare room or hallway, for one week. BWF staff and the adopter keep in contact. If all goes well during this transition, number one bunny can go back to her routine, sharing everything with her new friend.

If you would like to hear more about adopting a second or third (or fourth, or fifth....) rabbit from BWF, please email us at info@bunnyworldfoundation.org.
