Committee Reporting

Every committee should keep a record of its actions\(^1\). They may be called committee minutes or committee reports. Reports should be thorough, but not necessarily as formal as the board’s meeting minutes. Be sure to include who was at the meeting, start and end times, a report on the committee’s intent, actions and needs (resources).

Committee reports keep the staff and board apprised of progress. Reports maintained in a [perpetual] committee notebook allow future committee chairs to know what progress was made and the rationale for actions.

The attached Committee Report Forms include some proven best practices:

- Allowing committees to submit reports on-line; including drop down menus to facilitate ease.

- Realization that the report is for the benefit of the board of directors, thus reports must be very clear, offering facts and rationale. If the board does not understand the request for action or the proposal, there is a possibility that the motion will be sent back to committee or killed.

- Minutes can be taken by anyone at the meeting --- a volunteer director or staff member. It should not be assumed that staff attends to simply take minutes; they offer valuable resources when invited to participate in the meeting.

- Some common elements among the attached forms include: noting the economic impact, describing the action items, requests to schedule time with the board, making sure requests are written as clear Motions.

Two other forms are included:

- Committee Acceptance Form
- 20 Day Report Form (asking the committee to report on PROGRESS after about 3 weeks after their meeting)

Thank you to the organizations that shared their forms. Additional association management best-practice kits are archived at www.nonprofitcenter.com.

\(^1\)Committees have limited (or no) authority, unless provided by the bylaws, president’s charge to the committee, and/or the committee’s clearly written purpose statement (mission.) Very few committees have authority to act or enter into contracts on behalf of the organization without specific authority.
