Remembering Persia: Art and Healing \(/art/galleries/quarter-gallery/media-resources-archive\)

June 1-24, 2016

Featuring a collection of over 30 dioramas, Niccu Tafarodi's miniature worlds tell of her experiences and memories of Persian culture. Originally born in Shiraz, Iran, Niccu Tafarodi grew up in a time when Persian society saw female independence as unacceptable. Gender inequality was a constant hurdle in women's lives. Tafarodi was exiled from Iran in 1986 during the Islamic Revolution and immigrated to Minneapolis with her two children. Early on she struggled to find herself in the United States. The exhibition is a journey in diorama form of Niccu's exile from the land she loved and how she became an artist to share her memories and recover her health. Each work depicts a scene from the artist's life growing up in Shiraz, Iran and reveals insights into Persian culture through Tafarodi's unique experience.
