DALLAS, (March 6, 2009) - The developers of Museum Tower are pleased to announce the selection of Bobby Dhillon as director of sales for the luxury residential high-rise project. Dhillon brings a wealth of knowledge and experience in the residential high-rise market, especially in Dallas, to the Museum Tower sales team.

“Bobby is a world-class sales professional with strong connections to the Dallas market,” said co-developer John Sughrue. “Museum Tower is going to change the Dallas skyline and there is no better person to lead the charge.”

Most recently, Dhillon served as director of sales for Tivoli Realty Services where he was responsible for launching The Residences at the Mandarin Oriental, Atlanta in addition to managing five other real estate projects in the Atlanta area. Prior to that, as an account executive with Traditions Management, Dhillon led the company in sales of the Residences at the Ritz-Carlton, Dallas project.

“I am excited to return to Dallas to lead the Museum Tower sales force,” said Bobby Dhillon, “It’s a transformative project in a class by itself that defines sophisticated urban living.”

“Mr. Dhillon knows Dallas and knows what high-rise residents are looking for,” said co-developer Dan Boeckman. “We are pleased that Bobby will lead our team of stellar sales professionals”

Dhillon is a graduate of The Citadel-The Military College of South Carolina. Prior to joining the real estate industry, Dhillon specialized in software sales.

Are they STILL trying to build??? $750-$1300 per sqft seems insane - when $300-$600 per sqft condos are struggling to sell. AND this makes the 4th sales team to give it a crack, and it's pre-construction. Have they taken a look at a CMA lately??
