

MY HEART IS ASHORE

(Eb)

As the waves wash the planks of this old merchantman
And the skyline arises and plunges below
My wishes and dreams drift abroad to the land
Where my love lies asleeping, my heart longs to go

Her love calls to me o'er the leagues of the sea
Where e'er she is now is where I long to be

As my hands grip the sheets and we haul in the rain
And the salt wind arises and tears at my skin
My wishes and dreams drift abroad once again
Where my love lies asleeping my dreams can begin

Her love calls to me o'er the leagues of the sea
Where e'er she is now is where I long to be

As the bell tolls again and the watch changes hands
And my body sinks into my hammock once more
My wishes and dreams drift abroad to the land
Where my love lies asleeping my heart is ashore

Her love calls to me o'er the leagues of the sea
Where e'er she is now is where I long to be

As the sun rises east and we turn toward home
And the wind grants us favour, our heading is true
My wishes and dreams they now beckon me on
As my loves lies asleeping my heart comes to you

Your love calls to me o'er the leagues of the sea
Where e'er you are now is where I long to be

Her love calls to me o'er the leagues of the sea
Where e'er she is now is where I long to be
