Introduction

THERE ARE TWO groups of people walking around — one group are those that are saved already and the second group are those that are not save yet.

God judge the people base on works primarily in three categories such as on justice, mercy and grace.

Fear of dying or death is the scariest feeling that a person can have although we know that one day we will die. No one is exempted from death. It is just a matter of time, any second, any minute, any day from now.

To cushion the impact and fear of death, religion try to remind us that there is still existence after we die, although, this time, either to paradise or to hell. Of course, this idea of a life after we die is great news to most people although there are those humans who do not believe in the life-after-death. Be that as it may, it is good enough that religion believe in existence after we die and one such religion is Christianity which number about two billion people.

The Judeo-Christian God or God of the Bible declared that there is still life after we die after His judgment based on work.

There are many kinds of works. Religious and non-religious works such as sacramental works, charity works, mental works, following the Ten Commandments, visiting the sick in hospitals, giving drink to the thirsty, giving food to the hungry, visiting those in prison, helping the poor, work in the Bible, imputed work, good work, alms giving, studying, memorizing, meditating, physical work and so forth.

There are really many kinds of work but the Bible explains few specific works which are necessary for the judgment of God.

Do not be deceived about work or work done as being the basis for salvation. Different religions have different understanding about work or work done which is a little bit complicated because it does not involve your work alone but also the work of God, the work of Jesus Christ and the work of the Holy Spirit which is explain in the Bible.

Biblical works involve faith, law and grace. Actually the work of salvation is mainly the work of God. Unless you work in the Bible, your salvation is very uncertain.
