Shopping—it is a necessary evil. We all have to do it for one reason or another. We mainly shop for necessities such as food and clothing. Sometimes we shop for luxury items like jewelry or a new television. No matter what the purpose, shopping is unavoidable.

Shopping can be stressful at times. We always want to make sure we get everything we need at a price we can afford. It can be trying when we are unable to purchase an item because it is out of stock, not carried by the store, or out of our price range. It can also be discouraging when we do purchase an item and have to return it because it is the wrong size, damaged, not what the person wanted, etc.

Most of us lead hectic lives with very little free time. While shopping can be a leisurely activity, it is mostly done on the go. We shop before or after work, school, on our lunch break, between other appointments, etc. We hope to get what we need as quickly as possible with few to no problems along the way.

This guide book is meant to take the guess work out of shopping. Fifty of the nation's leading retail stores are listed here and divided alphabetically by category.

Under each store the following information is provided:

- Store Hours
- Merchandise Categories
- Services/Features
- Gift Cards/Store Cards/Store Credit Cards
- Store Website
- Coupons/Rebates/Store Flyer
- Email & Mobile Sign Ups
- Social Media Links
- Mobile Apps
- Company Contact Information

Note: there are categories listed above that are not available at some of the retailers included in this guide book. Also, since websites are updated periodically, the location of the links may be different than the ones provided in this guide. Rest assured though that the most important information on each store is provided.

After the store listings, tips for a smoother shopping trip are included along with helpful websites for the consumer. Finally, there is the individual store directory for easy lookup and notes pages for your personal use.

Do not be alarmed if a store is currently not available in your city, town or region. New store openings happen periodically, so it may be a matter of time before one pops up where you live. In addition, many if not all of the companies listed here give the option to purchase their items online while providing the same opportunities to take advantage of sales, special offers, etc. that you would find in their physical stores.

My hope is that this guide book becomes a valuable tool for consumers who want shopping to be a pleasant, stress-free experience.
