

Podcasts for Podcast Developers

David Arendale, Associate Professor, University of Minnesota, Arendale@umn.edu

There are many podcasts available through the iTunes directory on how to make a podcast. I have provided just a sample, some of which I have learned much.

(Highly recommended) Are you looking to launch a podcast, increase subscribers or take your existing podcast to the next level? I designed this site to give you the solutions, advice and tutorials you need to succeed. My goal is to help you create valuable and engaging podcasts that are so compelling that people will want to engage with you and your brand. Allow me to help you save hours, weeks, months or even years of research. Having the correct equipment and using it in the right way determines not only the quality of your podcasts, but how well your podcast converts listeners into subscribers and creates an engaged community.
