It is interesting to note that the large Lohmeyer families in St.Pancras (1844-1860) and Hackney (1888-1902) do not appear to have proliferated the Lohmeyer surname in the UK. Did all the males die early? Did the families return to Germany, emigrate, or perhaps change their name as part of the aftermath of WW1? More detailed research is required to answer these questions. To illustrate the spread of birth events, I have plotted the Lohmeyer (★) and Lohmeier (★) births in the UK between 1837 and 2006 below.

I am not actively researching Lohmeyer families in the UK at this time. If you have further information on any of the above, I would be pleased to hear from you.
