

What is Casting for Recovery?

Casting for Recovery is a national non-profit support and educational program for women who have or have had breast cancer.

We provide an opportunity for women whose lives have been profoundly affected by the disease to gather in a beautiful, natural setting and learn to fly fish, "a sport for life." Just as important, we offer an opportunity to meet new friends and have fun.

Our weekend retreat incorporates counseling, educational services and the sport of fly fishing to promote mental and physical healing.

Founded in 1996, Casting for Recovery has been offering free retreats across the country to help women move forward in their recovery. We rely on local volunteers and organizations to support our community based retreats.

The retreats provide an avenue for social support and group interactions, reducing the feeling of isolation many survivors might have.

The dynamics of fly fishing provide a healing connection to the natural world, relieving everyday stressors and promoting a sense of calm. Fly fishing techniques provide a gentle exercise for joint and soft tissue mobility.

The retreats offer a forum for women with similar experiences to meet, learn a new skill and gain a respite from their everyday concerns in a natural setting where well-being can flourish.
