About Ann Jackson

Jackson began her career with hospice and end of life care more than 30 years ago. She currently facilitates conversations among individuals and families who are making decisions for themselves or loved ones about choices at the end-of-life, now and in the future; consults with boards and administrators in developing organizational policy about end-of-life choices; and provides expertise to governmental and legislative bodies who are wrestling with end-of-life policy and law.

Speaking

- One day, 1-2 sessions: $1,500
- Two day, 2-3 sessions: $2,000
- Three day, up to 6 sessions : $2,500

A session covers up to 90 minutes and may include keynote speech, seminar, workshop, webcast, forum, retreat, panel facilitation or participation

Consulting

- $200 per hour, 2 hour minimum
- $1,500 per day

Consulting may include facilitating discussions with individuals or families to develop advance directives or perform responsibilities as health care surrogates; work with hospices, hospitals and other agencies to develop end of life policies consistent with patient wishes and state and federal law, such as responses to requests for medical aid in dying; confer with policy- and lawmakers about Oregon's experience with its Death with Dignity Act.

Travel and expenses are additional

Fees may be waived or adjusted for state hospice organizations or other not-for-profits
