Dear Graduate Students,

Welcome to the Graduate Post. We are very excited to provide this information resource for graduate students in collaboration and partnership with the Division of Student Affairs. The content of this medium is intended to cover the span of information and resources necessary to assist graduate students during their stay here at UC Santa Barbara. The range of topics intentionally covers academic, social, health, well-being, financial, and pragmatic issues in recognition that all of these areas are critical for graduate student success.

We know that you're busy, so the design of the Graduate Post is user-friendly, accessible, and fun. Despite your full schedules, we hope that you will take the time to make this forum your own. Please contribute and give feedback. Share this resource with your colleagues—get the word out! Keep the Graduate Post dynamic and relevant to your interests and needs.

Finally, join me in appreciating Don Lubach, Acting Assistant Dean, Office of Student Life, for his creative genius in founding this resource and to our Graduate Peers, Lisa Tremain, Indy Hurt, Courtney Gosnell, and Mario Galicia for their foundational and ongoing contributions. When you feel like getting out and visiting the home of the Graduate Post, come see us at the Graduate Student Resource Center.

Sincerely,

Gale M. Morrison
