Topic: TWA Mentors Share their Skills

Presentation By Mentors Of Their Skills

Several years ago TWA created a mentoring program with member volunteers who are ready and able to help other members with their projects and to help them expand their skills by trying new things. Unfortunately, this has not been a very active program. In an effort to kick start it, several mentors will discuss and demonstrate the types of things they do and are willing to share. Some of the skills covered will be inlay and banding, and developing color in finishing. Samples of what they do will be available and there

Host: Alan Campbell

I resolve to begin making Christmas gifts TOMORROW! No more waiting until Mid-December to begin making my list and checking it twice.

I resolve to finally figure out what color my shop floor really is! Organizing my shop and cementing some habits that make working in my shop easier, safer, cleaner and more enjoyable.

I resolve to actually write down a maintenance schedule for my equipment, and follow it! (at least for a while!) Clean, well maintained and adjusted tools are not only a joy to work with, but also give better results and are much safer.

I resolve to sit down and actually READ my tool manuals! Really! They are just full of useful information. Chances are, you will find capabilities your tools have that you don't even know about.

I resolve to spend more time in my shop on a regular basis. I often go through spurts where I will work in the shop every day after work, and then there are days where I hardly touch a single tool.

I resolve to setting aside some time this year to learn a new woodworking skill. We can all find something in the wide woodworking working world that we would love to learn how to do.

I resolve to not give myself so much grief when I measure two, three, even four times and still cut it wrong. It is a given, it is going to happen, this year I am going to laugh then swear.

I resolve to share my experience and joy in woodworking with as many others as possible.

Diane's TidBits

"Be so happy that when others look at you they become happy too"

I hope that all of you had a wonderful Christmas and an equally wonderful New Year! I hope as well that Santa was good to all.

With the start of a New Year comes the "resolutions" we all dread but we all think about just the same. I am no different, I start out with the hopes and wishes for myself as well as family, friends, neighbors, folks from TWA, church, and all other activities that I involve myself in. I then move on to praying that something good will happen with this illness I am fighting.

I have several close family members who keep track of me daily but I have one in particular that warms my heart with huge hugs every day and he says to me when I am hurting "grandma I know what you need to feel better" and that is followed by an incredible hug. He is right - it does help me feel better.

Having the responsibility of a six year old, caring for my mother-in-law after her own medical changes, not being in the comfort of my own home, and dealing with the struggles that I have - I have had to come up with creative ways to ensure that all is right with our world.

I recall a time when I was working daily and my father was retired and he loved nothing more than to have his grandsons with him when they were out of school so he could teach them the fine art of woodworking. I find now that I am medically retired that nothing thrills me more than my own grandson loving art projects. He has an art caddy that is full of different supplies and he can create some very imaginative things. Because I am not able to use my saws at this time I have started purchasing wood kits that he and I can put together and he can then paint. The look on his face when he sees the finished product is priceless and to listen to him figure things out as we put pieces together is incredible. Lately he has been interested in doing dimensional items and I think that turning 7 this year he is old enough to achieve his first wood burning. So part of my resolution for this year is to encourage the mind of a young man who has a great love for all things in the art world. He mastered sanding and is not afraid of the tool so I hope to increase his knowledge and keep his mind thinking of bigger and better things that I know he can do. I now understand my Dads excitement, when I would pick my own sons up in the evening and he was grinning as big as they were excited to show me what they had done during the day. Seeing the mind of a child and seeing the pride of accomplishment and the happiness they feel -- that is what makes life a better place to be.

It is January and our talented web folks and our Program Committee have this years schedule on our web page already. You can mark your calendar for the meetings and events you do not want to miss. It is also year 30 of our involvement in the Toys for Tots program. Over the years we have had some incredibly dedicated folks spearheading this program. It would be awesome to make this our best year ever and that is going to be a task as we have had some awesome years. I know our toy makers already have those wheels spinning for 2015. Your talents, dedication, and eagerness to learn and share make me very proud to be part of such an incredible organization.

Till next time...

Diane

Meeting Minutes

December 2014

The lmeeting started with a social hour (or rather 1/2 hour) and we all received the benefit of some great holiday cooking.

Diane Philyaw, president, opened the meeting with a holiday greeting.

Welfare Report: Paul Rolfe requested the floor for a few minutes and he thanked us for the cards sent tohim when he was sick, and he also made a point of saying he takes pride in being part of our T4T effort.

Show & Tell:

George Mills brought in pictures of some cabinetry he built and installed for family members out of poplar and reclaimed plywood.

Program:

This is the 29th year of T4T and TWA. Dianne complimented us on our workmanship onthe T4T products. She said that there would be some fortunate girls and boys receiving these gifts from us. This is one reason a lot of members keep on coming.

Fred Ford our T4T chairman wished us a Merry Christmas and reiterated how participating in this charity recharges our batteries. Two marines were present from the Raleigh area to collect the toys, and made a few remarks about the distribution of the toys to those in need. They thanked us for our efforts without any indication of dismay at the volume of toys we are sending forth

Fred introduced Roy Underhill to us, our friend from PBS. Roy has been on TV for 36 years as the driving force behind the Woodwright's Shop. Roy was entertaining as usualbut a cold acquired on a flight back to the teas from Turkey was slowing him down a little. I won't try to repeat his stories, because you have to be there! In addition he claims he likes to recycle them to either a new audience or one who has forgotten the old tales! Roy is now a published novelist, as he has authored a book that is for sale by Lost Arts Press. The title is Calvin Cobb, Radio Woodworker! (yes, you read that wright!). It is a novel "with measured drawings".

Fred Ford introduced the toys and the production chiefs.

#1. Pete Hodges .....ring toss toys

#2. Alan Campbell.....790 volkswagons. Bruce Wrenn had cut out all the bodies.

#3. Les Hall.....150 dachsunds pull toys

#4. Roger & Judy Sanwald.....Fish crayon holders & pull toys (200), whale pull toy (100)

#5. Don.....25 wrecker car combos and 50 crayon trucks

#6. Mark Firley.....55 bulldozers, 110 hippo pull toys (guys from Hillsboro and Orange Woodworkers)

#7. Alex Knittel.....race cars, locomotives with a cart

#8. Cecil Raynor.....doll cradles, 34 beds

#9. Terry Tenhouse.....wagons .....Terry worked with The Hardwood Store which donated the wood.

#10. Jim.....75 toy tractors, toy cars

#11. Bob Gabor.....54 tote boxes, 110 small trucks, 12 volkswagons

#12. Pete Bucky.....321 school buses or vans

The toys were then packed up and carted off by the Marines.

We adjourned until next year.

Moxon Vise Workshop
January 31st, 2015

A Moxon vise is a wide 2-screw portable vise especially useful for cutting dovetails by hand. A blog post in 2010 by Chris Schwarz initiated a new interest in this 17th century bench appliance.

Many different Moxon vise implementations are around and my design features Acme screws and ball bearings for smooth action. This vise can be mounted on your bench (or picnic table) using two clamps or holdfasts. Dimensions are 6" high and a width of your choosing (typically 18"-24") for the widest carcase side that you expect to dovetail. Maximum throat opening is 5 ½" thus you can hold an assembled drawer side for planing.

The workshop is scheduled for Saturday, January 31, 2015 (and Sunday if needed) at Cecil Raynor's shop in north Raleigh. Cost will be $100 including materials. A sign-up sheet will be passed around at the January meeting. As usual, your check to TWA is your reservation. Attendance will be limited to six participants for this workshop.

Simplifying Woodworking Tasks – Jigs with Terry Brown
February 17th, 2015

The presentation will focus on using power tools to maximize both your efficiency and accuracy.
Some of the areas to be covered will include:

-How to use your table saw more accurately without using all of the digital things that have permeated woodworking.
-How to make two marks on your saw that save time and allow accurate setting of the fence.
-Use of story sticks
-Simple modifications of the tools on hand to make them easier to use.
-Quick setup of support surfaces (in and out feed) for thicknesse
-A simple fence and tenon jig.
-A very important bit of advice on why to make jigs with built i short cuts that allow for quick and accurate adjustment.

Hand Saws
March 17th, 2015

Presentation By Mentors Of Their Skills

Bill Anderson, TWA member and star of woodworking on TV and DVD, will talk to us about hand saws. Bill teaches at Roy Underhill's Woodwright School and has appeared on Roy's show and published several articles in Popular Woodworking magazine. He has promised to bring several types of saws and demonstrate their use and the attributes that make them suitable for that use. Hopefully he can show us how to accomplish the all important task of starting that delicate cut! We are in the midst of a great revival in hand saws, with many manufacturers making saws that are gorgeous to look at and to use. Let Bill explain what to look for in a saw if you want to stray from the power cord!

year 29 Toys for Tots final report

Our 29th proved to be a great year. I was concerned that the loss of Creedmoor would cause the program to slow. However, thanks to some members stepping up and hosting their own workshops we ended up covering the Creedmoor loss with a wider variety of toys, and some good looking stuff. For those who do not know what we are talking about when I refer to "Creedmoor" that is a shop owned by Sue Eckard and run with her daughter our President Diane. It was the dream shop for many woodworkers as its size was enough for 15-20 of us to work at one time and we have produced over 20,000 toys in the years we were able to use the shop. The late Bill Eckard had a dream for the toys for tots program which he was a TWA member and huge supporter. I believe his wife and daughter more than fulfilled his dream. Because of health issues and a few other variables Sue has made the tough decision to retire which is why the shop is no longer available for our use. We will miss the hospitality we always received from Sue and Diane, we will miss the large gatherings as we always found stories to tell and we will miss the fun that we had in Bill's shop. We are thankful for the years of service we did receive. The Creedmoor shop has a place in history within the TWA Toys for Tots program. We had seven workshops that continued this year from previous years, Bob Gabor, Terry Tenhouse, Cecil Raynor, Allen at Klingspor, Jim & Thelma Rhodes, Don Frankfarther, and Alex Knittel. They were joined with new workshops hosts who are Pete Bucki, Mark Firley, Les Hall, Pete Hodges', and Roger & Judy Sanwald.

There were 50 workers supporting our efforts, and 7 of those are not TWA members. Thank you all for your support. I hope you all took a moment on Christmas to think of all the children and families we helped. After 29 years it is still a wonderful feeling to know that our efforts are welcomed by folks in need.

I want to thank The Hardwood Store of North Carolina for their generous contributions of hardwood. About 90% of the hardwood we used came from them. Terry Tenhouse is responsible for setting up the relationship and will be our interface to them again this year.

Our December was successful even with the bad weather. I would like to thank again the 19 members that brought awesome delights for all of us to share. What a great way to start our Holidays.

A huge thanks once again to thank Roy Underhill for coming to entertain us even with a bad cold and in bad weather. He is a true performer. The Show must go on. Roy has been a TWA supporter for over 30 years and we look forward to future and more Roy stories, always the highlight when he is in the room.

I usually rest January through May so I will be rested for the 2015 workshops. Well so much for a plan. Pete Hodges called the other day and said he has 200 cars of a new design ready for wheels. I guess I will be assembling my Grandchildren for another workshop.

2015 celebrates Year 30 of TWA and Toys for Tots. While every year is a great year I hope that even more members will join those already in thoughts of production and make the 30th year the BEST year ever. I look forward to seeing all that you put together -- that is the greatest treat for me. You are a very talented, giving, and inventive group. Those we help just do not realize how truly lucky they are!!!

TWA Helps Local Scouts

TWA Club Member Mike Weinberger opened his shop to a Local Scout Troop on a cold Saturday morning. The results of his generosity are that several young men now have a Derby car to race next weekend. Scout Master Rick Christensen is thrilled and could not bve more delighted that so many TWA members volunteered to help out.

Received from Rick:

Enclose are a few pictures from last Saturday's pinewood derby car cutting at Mike Weinberger's shop. It was a very chilly morning but Mike did an outstanding job in helping the cub scouts of Pack 141 to cut twelve hot looking cars. The Pack is very grateful to Mike and the TWA for volunteering to help our scouts and their families. We hope that we can work together again in the future.
