

Re: Current Council

Tuesday, July 31, 2007 6:32 AM

From: "Jack Johnson" <writejacknow@yahoo.com>

To: JimLindsaySmith@aol.com

Wow! I can't believe that. I'll bet it's Mick that pushed that through. I've got to learn some of his tricks!

From what I can tell, CDOT is dragging the Main St. issue out. I'll bring it up again. We're probably going to have to do some non violent civil disobedience to get something done.

Elevators and similar equipment are allowed another four feet. Unless they are proposing to use the access to those roofs which means that an elevator would have to go up full height. That should be considered.

As a designer I do think it unwise to count an elevator mechanical area or other mech. equipment in the total height. They are necessary and a very minimal area. The other issue is that if we were to say that 36' is our ultimate ht. or 42' or whatever it is and then count the elevator then we're unlikely to get projects that deliver on AH, if they are able to do anything at all.

That might be the point but I'm a believer in some development. Just not everything at once and not any development that doesn't deliver strong community benefits.

Am SO shocked that Jeff didn't stick around like he said he was going to....Or the Gaylords and anybody else that claims that. Seems the first thing out of people's mouths when they start considering how to cash out!

I'm out of town this weekend and have stuff at the beginning of the week but could do that Tues or Wed. What a nice invitation, thank you.

I think the Red and Yellow will probably be a COWOP process. If it still exists at that time. They aren't very popular, except with me.

Do you have interest in them? Are you wanting to get more involved? IF so, as I said, we need people on HPC and P&Z! You'd be great.

Jack

JimLindsaySmith@aol.com wrote:

Hey, Jack,

Have you seen that the "Stop for Pedestrian" sign is already up in front of the Catholic Church. I cannot believe what a hassle Helen K. made of getting "Stop for Pedestrian" signs on Main Street between Spring and Hunter.

If you need a volunteer for working on the Main Street pedestrian issues, I'd be happy to help out.

Also, if the paper is correct, you "guys" are really setting a strong agenda for the next year. I have no doubt that there will be a lot more cooperation between all of the Council members.

I really liked your comment that developers and their minions should not try to intimidate Council