

BACKGROUND

As professionals, consultants and contractors in the construction industry comes under the scrutiny of government, consumers and environmentalists, every stage of a project will be affected. Every business in the industry will be impacted, from small specialty trade contractors to large construction companies. These changes have led us to re-assess how we do business and operate in a sustainable way in order to survive.

LAND sds is committed to model the principles of sustainability in its operations, procurement energy efficiencies, development and building construction. Our commitment involves changing business practices over time to maximize the efficient use of resources in order to sustain our planet's natural resources for future generations.
