This Act may be cited as the Authentication of Documents Act.

2. Interpretation

"competent officer" means a person for the time being performing the duties of one of the offices designated in section 7;

"Convention" means the convention abolishing the requirements of legislation for Foreign Public Documents made at the Hague and dated the 5th October, 1961;

"document" includes a book, record, deed, power of attorney, affidavit, certificate, contract, plan, map, drawing, writing and any other method of conveying information in visible form;

"legalisation" means the formality by which the diplomatic or consular agent of the country in which a document is to be produced certifies the authenticity of the signature, the capacity in which the person signing the document has acted and where appropriate, the identity of the seal or stamp which it bears;

"public document" includes-

- (a) a document emanating from an authority or an official connected with the courts of any State being a party to the Convention, including those emanating from a public prosecutor, a clerk or registrar of a court, a sheriff or a process server;
- (b) an administrative document not hereinafter excluded;
- (c) a notarial act;
- (d) an official certificate which is placed on a document signed by a person in his private capacity, such as an official certificate recording the registration of a document, or the fact that it was in existence on a certain date, and an official or notarial authentication of a signature;

but does not include-

- (ii) an administrative document dealing directly with a commercial or customs operation;

(2) A certificate which purports to be signed, sealed or stamped by an officer whose certificate is declared by this Act to be sufficient authentication of a document may be accepted in evidence without proof of the signature, seal or stamp of such officer, and when accepted shall be presumed to be signed, sealed or stamped by such officer.

(3) The certificate of such officer shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein certified or attested.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall prevent the acceptance by any court or officer in charge of a public office of other evidence that a document was in fact signed by the person by whom it purports to have been signed or as to capacity in which the person signing acted.

(2) An administrative officer who is requested to attest the signature on a document by a person purporting to do so on behalf of some other person or on behalf of a company or association or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, shall not be satisfied as to the capacity and authority of the person signing the document except by written evidence such as-
