

WHO'S YOUR FARMER!!

Paola Farmers Market
2013

Saturday – June 15th

Due to Car Show our hours will be 7:00 AM to 10AM

Performing will be the Frontier Twirlers

Please notice different hours for this week. So don't be late or you will loose out. We will only be selling till 10 am due to set up for the car show.

Per Bruce Cordle they are trying to add something new each year to the car show, this year its a classy Pin Up Girl Contest. If you know someone who likes to dress up in the 40s, 50s, and 60s era clothing please point them to this contest. If you know someone who would be interested have them contact Bruce Cordle. They are limiting the total number of contestants so please apply asap

This week at the market we found FoxFire Farms selling the first greenbeans of the season and the last of the strawberries I am told. I bought a container of their freezer strawberry jelly. It sure is good. In fact my sister ended up taking home with her.

Don't forget only two more weeks to come and get your black walnuts and pecans . The Prothes will be gone for awhile on a big motorcycle ride and won't have a presence at the market from June 23rd till the end of July. So stock up now.

Deb Cutshaw will be back this week serving us breakfast from her new food wagon with such items as biscuits & gravy, a couple different types of quiches, egg burritos, and much much more. I even saw some individual homemade pies. Thank you Deb for sharing your amazing cooking talents with the customers and vendors. Deb will also have produce as it comes on.

Have you tried one of Helen White's Friendship Breads. They are so moist and good. Every week Helen spends all day in her kitchen baking different flavors of her breads and pies. I hear a favorite at the market is Mandarin Orange. She also has many items she has sewn. This week I especially noted a beautiful pink and brown baby quilt she made. So pretty.

Donna Cawley and Shirley Kolenberg sell some really pretty handmade jewelry. Shirley's husband spends all winter polishing stones for Shirley to make these beautiful necklaces and earrings. Donna Cawley has added some really cute teacup birdfeeders to her booth this year. Please stop by and visit with them.

Delores Day who sets up on that side of the square also has some pretty amazing yard art. I think she adds something new every week. The gnome and fairy gardens are so cute.

Joining us for the first time this season will be Lori Calvin selling flowers and flower baskets from Louisburg nursery.

Have you bought a ticket for the beautiful quilt, made and donated by Tracie Clary of Olathe Ks. Tracie has made and donated a quilt for the last three years. Not only is she my sister but one heck of a good person. She does so much for everyone. On June 22nd we will draw for the quilt. So get your tickets bought. $1.00 each or 6 for $5. It is going to a good cause - The Miami County Cancer Foundation. The next item we will sell raffle tickets on will be a quilt made by Helen White. Helen is also a major contributor to our raffles every year.
